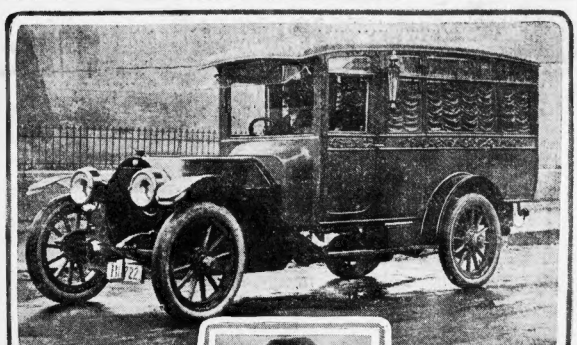
Aged and Stricken Woman Taken to Poorhouse at Night in Hearse



W. L. Soule, Middleboro undertaker, and, above, the motor hearse in which he drove Mrs. Sarah Hoover, an aged invalid, sixty-five miles to the State Infirmary at Tewksbury.

Shock of Ride Amid Trappings of Death May Prove Fatal.

Sarah Hoover, an aged paralytic, is on the "dangerous" list at the State Infirmary in Tewksbury, the result of shock to her nerves in being taken from her home in Middleboro over the road to the poorhouse in a hearse.

Officials of the State Board of Charity, which has jurisdiction over the State infirmary and its cases, are investigating the case.

To add to the horror of such a trip, if possible, it was made in the dark. The helpless woman was started from Middleboro in early evening and did not reach the infirmary until after midnight.

WITH SILK HANGINGS.

Through the dark hours the hearse, a motor vehicle, glided along the highways. It was a light gray, hearse, with silk hangings within, pleasing to the eyes of mourners, doubtless, but not suggestive of the grave to the unfortunate paralytic.

In the gruesome vehicle of death the poor old woman was transported "Over the hills to the poorhouse" in a way to inspire an even more heartrending version of Will Carleton's famous poem.

This torturing experience aroused the indignation of the authorities of the State Infirmary and of the State Board of Charity. Everything is be-

KAISER REMOVES GENERAL DEMLING

Zurich, Sept. 6.—Emperor William, according to Berlin advices, has relieved from active command General Demling, commander of Germany's Fifteenth Army Corps, because of his failure to hold positions which he had been ordered to maintain at all costs.

CHARGE FATHER OF 8 ROBBED THE MAILS

Richard H. Smith, clerk at the Boston central postoffice for ten years, and with a wife and eight children at his home in Somerville, is accused of stealing money from the mails.

He was arrested at evening in his home. He was held in $400 in the federal court today for a continued hearing on September 12. He pleaded not guilty.

Smith had acquired a $1,200 equity in the Somerville house in his wife's name. This was accepted as bail and the man was allowed to return home.

Smith's pay is about $20 or $22 a week. His family of eight ranges from nineteen years down to babyhood. The last one came six months ago.

The postal authorities said that when Smith was arrested he had $2.50 in marked money in one of his pockets. In his wallet were $76 in one-dollar bills. It was not all in one bundle, it is said, but was made up of several little folds, ranging from one dollar to five dollars in each. This, the postal authorities claimed, was an indication that they had been taken from letters.

GUILTY OF THREAT ON LIFE OF PRIEST

Salim Mansour of Hudson street, South End, was found guilty in the City Court today of having threatened the life of Monsignor Michael Gannam of the Church of the Blessed Virgin on Harrison avenue. The case was continued until tomorrow for sentence, and Mansour was held in $500. According to the police Mansour not only used threatening words against Monsignor Gannam, but at one time threatened him with a hammer.

DAYLIGHT SAVING PLAN TO BE HEARD

A public hearing will be held in the library of the Chamber of Commerce September 20 or the following day regarding the daylight saving plan. The committee states that a large representative audience is desired so that the attitude of the community toward the plan may be obtained.

SENTENCED IN ARSON CASE

Joseph Tamburino of No. 60 Chambers street, West End, whose arrest and prosecution followed the investigation of the so-called arson trust by the Grand Jury, was today sentenced to six to eight years in the State Prison by Judge Hardy.

Assistant District Attorney Daniel V. McIsaac urged that a heavy sentence be imposed. He emphasized the gravity of the offence and said that the lives of sixteen persons were imperilled because of the fire at the house on Chambers street where Tamburino lived.

John F. McDonald urged that clemency be extended to his client, asserting that his acts were inspired by ignorance rather than by malicious ness, and that Tamburino was in no way connected with the arson trust.

WIFE BREAKS DOWN.

Mrs. Tamburino broke down in the court room when sentence was imposed.

When he was taken to the detention pen, Tamburino beseeched his wife not to marry again during his sentence. She replied that she would not and said she would visit him at the prison as often as conditions permitted.

Tamburino was found guilty some weeks ago. He was out on bail and defaulted before sentence was imposed.

Inspector Thomas Lynch of the Boston Police Department traced him to Philadelphia and from that city to Wilmington, Delaware. Later Tamburino went to Liverpool and from there sailed for Montreal.

BETRAYED BY POSTCARDS.

His presence in Montreal became known to the authorities by reason of postcards that he sent to a Boston doctor, which were turned over to the police.

While in Montreal, Tamburino became involved in some difficulties with the authorities and was arrested. In court today he denied his guilt and declared he protested against the officers of the law who "wanted me to kill myself."

WOMAN ADMITS SHE KILLED HUSBAND

Chicago, Sept. 6.—After a night of questioning Mrs. James B. Barnes admitted to the police today that she shot and killed her husband in Washington Park late last night after his refusal to withdraw a divorce suit, which was to have been called in court today.

Noisy Soup Eater Is Arrested for Lack of Manners

Patrolman Chisholm was walking his beat along Atlantic avenue early this morning when he heard a most gurgly kind of a sound.

He advanced in search of the gurgler and found John J. O'Toole entirely surrounded by eight cans of soup. The gurgling was due to John eating from a ninth can.

"Where did you get all this soup?" said the policeman.

O'Toole refused to stop eating soup to bother about answering a policeman, so the officer arrested him and he was charged with stealing the soup from an Eastern Steamship freight shed.

Really, one mustn't gurgle noisily when one eats soup.

TEUTONS 35 MILES FROM BUCHAREST

London, Sept. 6.—The German army attacking the Rumanians is today only thirty-five miles from Bucharest, the capital of Rumania.

The Germans are established at Tutrakan, where they took the bridgehead in a storm attack.

Yesterday's advance told of the capture of Alexandrovac, about sixty miles from Bucharest, by the Teutonic allies. Tutrakan and Alexandrovac both face the Danube, of which the Teutons are evidently seeking to force the passage.

Both are Rumanian towns and are

TORPEDOED OR SUNK BY MINE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 6.—A possible violation of Germany's submarine warfare pledges to this government was revealed today when Consul John N. McCunn at Glasgow, Scotland, cabled the State Department that twenty-eight Americans were on board the British steamer Kelvinia, which was torpedoed or mined and sunk near Glasgow on September 2.

London, Sept. 6.—On the Somme front, one of the greatest battles of the war is being fought today. Berlin officially states that the French and British forces engaged number 500,000 men.

Probably an equal number of Germans are contesting the newest phase of the "big push," making the total forces engaged well over a million men.

Berlin admits the loss of Clery, two and one-half miles northeast of Peronne, but claims gains south of up-four hours, by a night attack, have gained all of the Leuze wood, thus nearing Combles, from which they were but 400 yards distant before their capture of the wood, which was strongly fortified.

Combles is nearly enveloped. The British are immediately west and north of it. The French are near on the south and southeast.

From Barleux to south of Chilly according to Berlin, the German lines have held. Here the French have attempted a turning move after the failure of direct attacks.

Germans Admit Loss of Clery

Berlin, Sept. 6.—The German War Office in its official communication today admitted the capture of Clery on the Somme front by the allies.

"Clery is less than five miles northwest of Peronne. The immediate object of the allied attack in this region is to make valueless the German possession of the Chaulnes-Peronne railroad."

South of the Somme river, the report says, the Germans have captured thirty-one French officers and 1,427 men.

Clery is two and one-half miles northwest of Peronne and about the same distance southeast of Maurepas.

On the eastern front the Russian centre has been driven back in Galicia.

German and Bulgarian troops are continuing their advance in Roumania, driving back Roumanians and Russians. The text of the official report follows:

"Eastern front—Army group of Prince Leopold—Russian attacks north of the Ploczow-Tarnopol railway failed.

"Army group of Archduke Karl—Between the Zlota-Lipa and Dneister rivers, the Russians, after futile storming attacks, were pressed back along the centre of their front.

BATTLE ON SOMME.

"In the Carpathians the enemy has gained some advantages southwest of Zable and Schipoth. At other points Russian attacks were repulsed.

"Balkan front—Seven works defending Tutrakan have been captured by storm by German and Bulgarian troops. North of Dobritch, Roumanian and Russian forces were driven back.

"Western front—The battle on both sides of the Somme continues. Twenty-eight English and French divisions (about men) are engaged. North of the river new attacks were repulsed. The enemy gained ground at some points. Clery is now in the hands of the enemy.

"South of the river our first positions were immediately against attacks by the French on a front from Hardecourt to south of Chilly. Only where our advanced trenches were entirely destroyed were they evacuated. Later attacks were repulsed with severe losses to the enemy.

"Up to last night the result of the two days' battle south of the Somme was thirty-one captive officers and 1,437 men in our hands, as well as twenty-three machine guns. Three more enemy aeroplanes have been shot down."

French Hold Somme Lines Against Attack

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Sept. 6.—German counter attacks were made south of the Somme River last night in an effort to check the advance of the French in that region, but all were repulsed, the War Office announced today.

North of the Somme there was a violent artillery combat. South of the line of Deniecourt and Berny-en-Santerre the Germans launched several powerful assaults, following a bombardment of the positions captured by the French yesterday, but they failed to recapture any of their lost terrain.

On the Verdun front the Germans made artillery preparation for an attack at Fleury, but it was stopped by the French machine gun fire.

Deniecourt is nearly two miles east of Estrees. Berny-en-Santerre is a mile east of Deniecourt.

ATTACK ON SOMME.

The text of the official communique follows:

"North of the Somme the enemy attacked during the night. An artillery duel continues actively in different regions of the front.

"South of the Somme the Germans made numerous counter-attacks against our new positions south of Deniecourt and on the outskirts of Berny-en-Santerre. All were shattered by our curtain of fire with heavy losses for the enemy.

"On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) the enemy launched at 8 o'clock last night an attack against the village of Fleury.

ATTACK IN LORRAINE

"Taken under the violent fire of our machine guns, the Germans were unable to debouch. The number of prisoners taken in the sector east of Fleury was increased by forty.

"In Lorraine a strong enemy detachment, surprised by our fire, was dispersed at the moment it tried to capture an advanced post.

"Everywhere else the night was quiet."

Teutons Repulsed, Says Bucharest

By International News Service.

Bucharest, Sept. 6.—The repulse of German and Bulgarian troops on the frontier of Dobrudja province is reported in an official statement issued by the War Office today.

The Bulgarians are bombarding Rumanian towns across the Danube.

The official report follows:

"We have occupied heights west of Borzecket, capturing four officers and 150 men. We are in possession of the whole of the Dobrudja frontier. An attack south of Bazarjik (Dobitch) was repulsed. Firing continues along the frontier. The enemy has bombarded Calafat and Islaza.

"Three enemy hydro-aeroplanes bombarded Constanza, wounding a number of civilians, including children.

Calafat is opposite the Bulgarian town of Vidin and is the terminal point on a railway leading to Bucharest.

A Zurich dispatch states that within one week the Rumanians have occupied more than 7,000 square miles of Bulgarian territory, according to admissions made officially in Vienna. One of the severest blows to Austria-Hungary has been the cutting of river communications on the Danube at the Iron Gate.

Germans Are Driven Back Near Halicz

By International News Service.

Petrograd, Sept. 6.—The capture of 4,500 more prisoners by the Russians in Galicia, including 2,000 Germans, was announced today by the War Office. The Austro-German forces in the region of Halicz have been driven back.

According to the announcement, the British troops sent into Russia to fight in Armenia are now at grips with the Turks west of Lake Van.

WAR SUMMARY

Operations in the Balkans remain today very much in the forefront of the war news. The surprising gains claimed by the Teutonic allies against the Rumanians are forthstanding features. It is undeniably significant that Tutrakan, where the Germans report capturing the bridgehead by a storm attack, is but thirty-five miles from Bucharest, the Rumanian capital. The Rumanians and their allies must make a speedy and effective counter stroke if Bucharest is not to be seriously menaced. The Rumanians, of course, are by no means idle. A Zurich dispatch credits Vienna with officially admitting the occupation of 7,000 miles of Hungarian territory by the Rumanians during the past week.

The slow and expensive gains of the allies in the West, costly as they are, are still gains; furthermore, they are being kept up steadily. France, which was believed in some quarters to be slowly bleeding to death at Verdun, thus forcing the "big push" by the British, has demonstrated daily her power to strike. The allies during the past twenty-four hours have pushed the Somme wedge farther, the British advancing a mile beyond Guillemont and the French nearing Peronne from the North. The taking of Ommiecourt links the forces of the allies in the North and the South. The allied grip on Ginchy has been strengthened.

General Brusiloff is keeping up his tactics of making sharp, unexpected thrusts against the Germans all along his line. The roads to Kovel and Lemberg, where the Teutons are making a strong stand, are in imminent danger, and the great offensive toward Vladimir-Volynski, where a long battle is under way, shows no signs of abating. The Slavs claim to have made big captures of guns and men.

ITALIANS EXTEND GAINS

By International News Service.

Rome, Sept. 6.—Although bad weather has hindered operations along the entire front, the Italians have extended their occupation of the western slope of Punta Del Furame in the upper Rio valley, the War Office announced today.

On the Albanian front the Italians have destroyed the lines of the German allies between Samar and Frasani.

Artillery Duel on All Serbian Front.

By International News Service.

Paris, Sept. 6.—There has been no infantry action on that section of the Balkan front held by the French, says a War Office communication issued today on operations in Greek Macedonia.

The War Office report on Balkan operations follows:

"Army of the Orient—No infantry engagements developed yesterday. The artillery duel was violent in the regions of the Struma and Lake Doiran, as well as on the entire Serbian front."

All of Leuze Wood Is Taken by British.

London, Sept. 6.—Attacks made by the British troops last night enabled them to capture all of Leuze wood, half a mile northwest of Combles, the War Office announced today.

The Germans had strongly fortified this little forest, but the British drove them out in a fierce charge, thus advancing closer to Combles, which is still held by the Teutons.

The War Office statement reports that fighting is still in progress between the captured wood and Combles and Ginchy.

The War Office statement follows:

"Last night we gained possession of the whole of Leuze wood. Fighting continues between the wood and Combles village and around Ginchy.

"There was artillerying on both sides northwards of Pozieres and in the neighborhood of Mouquet farm. Last night we discharged gas successfully opposite Gommecourt.

"Yesterday afternoon our heavy artillery shelled enemy Hutments at Polygon woods, east of Ypres."

BAY STATE CROPS HIT BY BAD SUMMER

New England's unseasonable Summer is reflected in the Bay State crops which, according to Wilfred Wheeler, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, will be below normal.

Potatoes are especially hard hit. Here, Mr. Wheeler says there will be half a crop, and prices are likely to soar in cold weather.

Apples, according to the secretary, will yield a two-thirds crop. Grapes are a failure; peaches, fair.

The abundance of the second hay crop will make this year's total crop very fair. The oat and wheat crops will be good. Reports from the Connecticut Valley indicate that tobacco and onion crops will be very good. The tobacco yield, despite one or two severe hailstorms, promises to be normal and of superior quality.

SAYS WE BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes every man and woman adopts this splendid morning habit.

Why is a man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness?

If we all would practice inside bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we would see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms poisonous like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.—Advertisement.

THE BEST THING FOR DYSPEPSIA

WHY PEPSIN, PANCREATIN, E TC., SO FREQUENTLY FAIL.

An international specialist whose articles on stomach trouble have been printed in nearly every language, recently stated that to treat the average case of stomach trouble, indigestion, dyspepsia, etc., by doctoring the stomach, killing the pain with opiates, or by the use of artificial aids to digestion such as pepsin and pancreatin, was just as foolish and useless as to attempt to put out a fire by throwing water on the smoke, instead of the fire. He claims, and facts seem to justify his claim, that nearly nine-tenths of all stomach trouble is due to acidity and food fermentation; and that the only way in which to secure permanent relief is to get rid of the cause, i.e. to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation. For this purpose he strongly recommends the plan now generally adopted throughout Europe of taking a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in a little water immediately after eating, whenever pain is felt. This immediately neutralizes the acid, stops the fermentation and permits the stomach to do its work in a normal manner and thus by removing the cause, enables nature to quickly restore the inflamed stomach tissue to a perfectly healthy natural condition. For the convenience of travelers it may be noted that most druggists are now able to supply bisurated magnesia, in 5 grain tablets, 5 or 8 of which will almost instantly relieve the most violent attacks of indigestion.

By DOROTHY DIX.

New York, Sept. 6—The saddest procession that man has ever beheld is passing through the office of Assistant District Attorney Smith these days. It is made up of shabbily dressed women, with tear-faded eyes and work-knotted hands and bent shoulders. They are the mothers of "lost" girls, and, clutching at the weak little straw of hope that the vice investigation has offered them, they have come to beg Mr. Smith to try to find their Mamies and Sadies and Rosies.

Always their stories are the same:

"She was such a pretty girl, my Mamie, or Sadie, or Rosie. And a good girl, too. Always laughing and dancing, fond she loved fine clothes, and maybe I scolded her a little too much about always wanting to go to the movies and to balls, and for wasting her money on foolish finery that would not last.

"But she was a good girl. I know she was a GOOD girl, and she wouldn't do anything wrong of herself.

"AND NOW SHE'S GONE."

"Then one night she went out with a fellow to a party, and she never came back. I hunted and I hunted for her, but I could not find her. And I implored the police to hunt her for me, and they wrote down all about her in the books—how she was pretty, and had cheeks like roses and black hair, but they could not find her either. And she's never come back. She's GONE!"

And then when she has told her tale of the missing girl, the tale that is told thousands upon thousands of times every year in this city, the tale that no repetition ever robs of its pathos or its tragedy, the mother's voice trails off into sobs, for she is mourning a daughter worse than dead, a daughter that she would be glad to know was safe in the peace of the grave.

There are thousands of such mothers looking for daughters that they will never find again, for every year there are thousands of young girls who disappear in New York and who are never heard of again by their families. What becomes of them only our fears can conjecture.

Whether they are murdered; whether they are sidetracked and held as prisoners of vice behind locked doors and barred windows; whether they are sent from here to other cities and foreign countries as victims of white slavers; or whether they bury themselves of their own accord in the underworld, we do not know.

We only know that the girl steps out of her little circle and is never seen or heard of again by those who knew and loved her. Like a leaf in the earth had opened and re-allowed her to be swallowed up.

MOTHERS NEVER FORGET.

Occasionally the girl clings to a rich and prominent family, as was the case of Dorothy Arnold, whose disappearance is as much of a mystery now as it was when she disappeared at midday from the benches of Fifth avenue, although a fortune has been spent in searching for her and the detectives of the world have spent their best skill in looking for her.

For the most part, however, the lost girls belong to poor and humble people, and after the police have made a feeble and futile effort to find them, it is only their mothers who go peering into the face of every stranger they meet on the street, looking forever for the daughters they are never to see again.

Undoubtedly some of the girls who disappear are forcibly captured and imprisoned by white slavers. Undoubtedly some of these girls die defending themselves, as the bodies of young women that are found floating now and then in the river bear mute and terrible testimony, but for the most part the lost girls deliberately lose themselves.

They have left home of their own accord, and hidden themselves with a selfish and pitiless disregard of the anxiety and agony of those they have left behind them. They have simply left their old world for a few, and sometimes they are ashamed to go back, and sometimes they are so enamored of the new that they would not go back if they could.

HOW CAN WE SAVE THEM?

It is well that the law should punish the men, who traffic in the souls and bodies of girls with such severity that they will be afraid to ply their evil calling. The man who takes a girl's life does not commit the sin against her that the man does who slays all that is pure and good and innocent in her, and the death penalty itself would not be too great to be inflicted on the men who are convicted of sending girls upon the streets.

But after these fiends have been punished and their fate made a warning to others, we have still the problem of the girls themselves, of how to keep them straight, for, after all, temptation only tempts those who are inclined to yield, and those only fall who have not the strength to stand.

The most appalling thing to this whole vice investigation has been the revelation of the ease with which girls are led astray. By their own confession it has been shown that a good-looking man who is a gib talker has only to make a little love to most girls, or take her to the theatre a few times, or give her a few presents, and she is so befuddled with love that she is willing to take any risk and go anywhere with him.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

This is one reason why girls leave home. They are such silly little geese, so ignorant and unsophisticated, knowing so little of life, that they are literally unaware of what they are doing until it is too late. Also girls are devoured with a curiosity to know life which makes danger have a fatal fascination for them. They circle round and round the ravenous beast that they have been warned will devour them, until they get so close that, at last, they are within his den.

Another reason that girls leave home is because most mothers are either too lax or too strict. The lax mother lets her little girl run the street and go where she pleases, picking up any chance acquaintance, running any risk. The girl learns to live for the gratification and the excitement of the moment, and she is inevitably lured by the false brilliance of the so-called gay life as the moth is drawn to the flame.

The strict mother opens the door and lets her daughter drift away from home, the too strict mother drives her daughter from home by shutting the door. Last Winter for days the papers were full of the mysterious disappearance of a young girl who belonged to a well-to-do and highly respectable family.

MOTHER ACTED AS DUENNA.

The girl's mother was sure that her daughter had been forcibly abducted by white slavers.

"The time that I left my daughter go down town was almost the first time in her life that I had ever permitted her to do such a thing. I always keep her right under my eye. I never let her visit other girls, and when she takes a walk or goes to the theatre, either her father or myself accompanied her. We never let her go anywhere alone or with another girl."

The girl was eventually discovered perfectly safe, but working out as a servant girl. She had run away from home because she could no longer endure being a prisoner, without the liberty to draw a single free breath, and any girl of spirit would be tempted to do the same thing

OFFICIALS RENEW FIGHT.

The diagnosis in the case of Laura Bailey of Ware, reported on August 29, has been changed.

With the date of opening the Boston public schools deferred from September 11 to 25, the city health authorities renewed their fight against the epidemic today in the hope of seeing it subdued by the time of the postponed date.

The AMERICAN today received numerous letters and telephone communications in which it was congratulated for its efforts in behalf of the early opening of the schools set back. In an editorial published last week the AMERICAN pointed out the damage which might result in opening the schools next week. It advocated that they be kept closed.

MAY BE ANOTHER DELAY.

If the number of paralysis cases has not diminished by September 25 the date for the opening of the schools may be set back until some time in October.

Dr. David D. Scannell, chairman of the board, said the committee has been under consideration the infantile paralysis situation, with its bearing upon the schools, for several weeks. Both Joseph Lee, who is summering in the Adirondacks, and Major F. L. Hogan, M. D., now at El Paso, telegraphed their approval of postponement until cooler weather should bring an abatement in the paralysis outbreak.

"While we may not be of the opinion," said Dr. Scannell, "that school opening on the original date, September 11, would cause the spread of the disease, we must consider public sentiment, and from many letters received, not only from parents, but from physicians, it is apparent that public sentiment is for postponement.

"Again, if we should open the schools on the original date and there should be a considerable increase in the number of cases, we should undoubtedly be severely censured and would never hear the last of it."

POSTPONE CHELSEA SCHOOLS.

Chelsea's public schools will, in accordance with a vote passed unanimously by the Chelsea School Committee, remain closed until Monday, October 2, instead of opening September 13. The infantile paralysis epidemic was not wholly responsible for the school board's action, but was a contributory cause. But one case of the disease has occurred in Chelsea. The threatened railroad strike was responsible for delaying the delivery of furniture for the new addition to the Williams schoolhouse and this district, being badly overcrowded, it was deemed advisable in view of present conditions to delay the opening of all of the schools until next month.

Superintendent Frank Farlin outlined a plan whereby the loss of time to pupils can be partially made up by extending the term into next June and shortening the mid-year vacations.

URGES UNIFORM BUILDING LAWS

At a special recess committee hearing on building legislation at the State House today, uniform State building laws were advocated by William H. Hayward, Charles W. Killam, William Stanley Parker and Fred A. Wilson, members of the Building Law Commission of 1914 and 1915.

The principal recommendation was for a State building commissioner with a salary of $7,500. It is the opinion of the commission that the manufacturers should not have to go to the Legislature or to several boards to get the permission to use new materials.

TOOK AGED PAUPER IN HOSPITAL SUED BY HEARSE

ing done to make the aged woman forget her grewsome experience, although her health is in a precarious condition, caused by the sixty-five-mile night trip in a hearse.

The fact that she had to go to the "poorhouse" agitated the aged woman in itself—but to be sent by night in a hearse has resulted in such a shock to her nerves that she is now on the dangerous list at the infirmary.

IS HOPELESS CRIPPLE.

Sarah Hooper is sixty-two years old. She has no relatives and but few friends. She is a hopeless cripple, one entire side being paralyzed. She had no means of support, and there was nothing left to do but to go to Tewksbury. This was just a month ago, and the facts have not become known until today.

She had to be sent there by the town. Tewksbury is about sixty-five miles from Middleboro. The train accommodations are such that the patient could easily have been put on a stretcher and moved to the train. For some unknown reason the authorities of the town did not pursue this course, but effected the transfer in an automobile hearse.

The journey was made after dark night had fallen, the start being made shortly after seven o'clock. The old lady, suffering, and with no one by her except one woman who, out of compassion, accompanied her, was taken over the sixty-five miles of road.

At twenty minutes past one in the morning she arrived at the State Infirmary at Tewksbury and was admitted.

Dr. Roach, who was acting as the superintendent in the absence of Dr. G. A. Peirce, received her. She was put on the dangerous list immediately and has been on that list during the past month.

At twenty minutes past one in the morning she arrived at the State Infirmary at Tewksbury and was admitted.

Dr. Roach, who was acting as the superintendent in the absence of Dr. G. A. Peirce, received her. She was put on the dangerous list immediately and has been on that list during the past month.

BRUTAL ACT REPORTED

Dr. Roach questioned the driver of the auto hearse as to the time of the departure, and the roads that were traveled. Immediately the fact concerning on the unbecoming and brutal manner of transportation was sent to the State Board of Charity. A word was given out by the board until all facts and figures relative to the case were disclosed. The name of the town and that of the overseer of the poor were withheld. Information of the poor in Middleboro is Charles M. Thacher.

Dr. Peirce, superintendent of the State Infirmary at Tewksbury, in commenting on the case today said:

I was on my vacation when it happened, and did not know of it until a few days ago. Affairs at the Infirmary was made to me upon my return, and I found out that the matter had been brought to the attention of the State Board.

I would not say that the trip was harrowing, but it seems to me that it was most unbecoming. It would seem that she was suffering enough, and it is unfortunate, especially, without having such an inhumane thing forced upon her as a sixty-five mile ride in a hearse.

There may be extenuating circumstances, which I don't know. The trip could be as easily made by train, and if the authorities had stop to consider the matter it could be made as cheap by train. I understand that the State Board is now looking into the matter.

Dr. Robert M. Merrick of Boston, one of the members of the State Board, when asked what action the board would take in regard to the case, said:

The matter was referred to us for investigation. We have sent a man to Middleboro to make inquiries, but he has not yet reported to us. It is, of course, possible that there were extenuating circumstances, but at any rate the board will take no action until it is sure of the facts.

It does not seem to me that it was a fit thing to do. Of course we cannot censure a man until we are sure, but you may rest assured that when the true facts are brought to light if it is shown that it was not absolutely necessary to use that mode of transportation the board will take action.

COMBINATION VEHICLE.

W. L. Soule, the Middleboro undertaker, who owns the hearse which carried Sarah Hoover, explained today that his vehicle was both hearse and ambulance. He said:

"I have been in business here about nine years. The town has no ambulance. When one is needed on an accident case it take a long time to get one. So I thought, when I ordered a new auto hearse, that I would have one made that could be used as an ambulance also. I ordered a combination vehicle built, had it painted light gray and brightened up some so as to take away the appearance of death.

"The doctors of the town have rendered its use as an ambulance. The first time it was called upon for ambulance purposes was on May 29, when two girls, hurt in an auto accident, were taken to Taunton Hospital. Yes, I use it for funerals right along."

The auto ambulance-hearse is a large, long motor vehicle, with the body painted light gray. In this respect it is less sombre than the usual black of hearses. But it has the silk inside draperies common to hearses, and there is carving on the outside beneath the side windows. Anyone seeing the vehicle, despite its gray color, would instantly recognize it as a hearse.

EXTORTION PLOT IN LAWYER'S MURDER

New York, Sept. 6—All the elaborate machinery of the detective bureau has failed so far to establish even a motive for the murder of Dwight B. Dilworth, in Van Cortlandt Park.

Forty-eight hours after the murder the police were no nearer the solution of it than a man when first confronted by the body.

Orders have been issued curtailing the vacation of Captain Andrew Wiese, commander of the Bronx detective bureau. He is supposed to known more about the haunts and habits of the gangs that infest Van Cortlandt Park than any other policeman. He will be called upon to direct the murderers on the theory that they were members of a gang which has perpetrated many robberies in the park.

The blackmail theory asserts itself constantly. For it is known that gangs of young toughs have been haunting the park in the hope of extorting money from so-called joy riders.

CHILDREN'S PLAY FETE POSTPONED

The Brookline play festival and pageant scheduled to take place last evening on the Soch Field, Brookline, with thirteen hundred children costumed as flowers, has been postponed until the first clear night. The celebration marks the closing of the playground season, and is a climax to the Summer's work in play and dancing. Charles P. Cameron has full direction and the pageant is the work of Park Commissioner Donald Fitzgerald.

3 MORE WIVES JOIN COLONY AT BORDER

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 6.—The Massachusetts wife colony on the Mexican border has been increased by the arrival of the wives of three officers of the Fifth Regiment.

They are Mrs. W. H. Oates, wife of Lieutenant Oates, Company L, of Malden; Mrs. Henry D. Cormerais, wife of Captain Cormerais, Company C, of Newton, and Mrs. Fred C. Kean, wife of Captain Kean of Company G, of Woburn. They are to live at the Linden, opposite the plaza and are to be joined in a day or two by Mrs. Stover, wife of Colonel Willis W. Stover.

The wives of the men of the "Dandy Fifth" reached El Paso just in time for the ball to be given by the officers of the regiment on the roof garden of the Hotel Paso Del Norte tonight. The Fifth "All Rookie" Band is to furnish dancing music. General and Mrs. Bell are to be among the guests.

PLAN ATHLETIC MEETS.

The first athletic tournament was such a success that General Sweetser has decided to hold them more often. Another meet will be held Saturday on a smaller scale, with relay and horse races. Colonel Logan has a show stand erected in headquarters corner, and an "Amateur Night" has been arranged for Thursday. The hook will be used on unsatisfactory performers, as it was in the old Columbia Theatre at home.

The Ninth will stage the first regimental boxing bouts Saturday night.

Colonel Graves' troops of performers in the Eighth will repeat "Pike Times, the Plains and the Girl" before the patients at the Base Hospital at Fort Bliss.

Harry Lofkin, M Company of the Eighth, was sent to the contagion ward for observation, apparently suffering from fever.

Captain J. N. Grier, K Company, and Lieutenant James J. Powers, G Company, both of the Ninth Regiment, and Lieutenant H. M. Bugg of the Coast Artillery, have arrived from Marfa and attended a conference with General Sweetser and the colonels of the brigade. They have been detailed by Adjutant-General Pearson to make a muster roll of every Massachusetts National Guardsman on the border for a State record.

LIST FOR LEGISLATION.

Captain Grieg explained that only two gift lists had been prepared, one for the War Department and the other for the brigade headquarters here, and that the adjutant-general desired one to submit to the Legislature when that body takes action to provide for the dependents of the men on the border.

Prospects of legislative action and the coming of the new field hospital and ambulance companies shattered hopes of an early return and spread the opinion that the Massachusetts units may be kept on the border longer than first supposed.

FRANK E. CRANE DIES IN QUINCY

Frank Fessenden Crane, one of the most prominent citizens in Quincy, died in his home there of heart trouble. He was in the real estate business. He was past commodore of the Quincy Yacht Club, was instrumental in bringing the Fore River shipyards to this city, and had been water front commissioner for many years.

DOUBLE FUNERAL FOR MAN AND WIFE

Lonsdale, Sept. 6.—A double funeral was held this morning at No. 47 Main street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Gravier, the wife dying thirteen hours after her husband. Both were well known among the French residents of the Blackstone Valley, and each had been ill about a month.

Young Explorers Towed Home After a Night on Island

Four East Boston boys, who went on a sight-seeing tour of Boston Harbor in a big rowboat, arrived home today in tow of the police boat Watchman, after a night spent on Governor's Island.

The boys are Pasquale Fusco, seventeen, of No. 25 Leyden street; Dominic Carullo, sixteen, of No. 24 Leyden street; Rocco Famolare, fifteen, of No. 7 Whitby street, and Carmello Guiffre, fifteen, of No. 10 Whitby street.

Their parents passed an anxious night. They notified the police and the Watchman set out in quest of the missing boys who had been away from their homes since early afternoon.

The boys said they set out to explore the harbor. When abreast of Governor's Island they could make little headway against the fast rising sea and became alarmed.

They managed to make the island, where a woman gave them food and lodging.

"Poco" Bennett Arrested for "Bookmaking"

The police of Court square station have arrested "Poco" Bennett in their drive on "bookmakers" and other promoters of gambling. "Poco," whose first name is Louis, was accused of keeping an office for registering bets and handling pools.

The police say that there is a gang of men who take bets on horse races or ball games, run ball pools or other wise cater to the gambling element.

Bennett is one of the best known sporting men east of New York. He has several automobiles, enjoys a large income and is usually the last

J. P. Collins Buys Pianos to Go Into This Big Sale

I Went to St. Johnsville, N. Y., Last Week

And, believe me, I bought SOME pianos—for prices that permit me to give my customers the most wonderful piano bargains of the century. I have been accused of turning the Boston piano market upside down by my low prices and by my ability to get the pianos for the people. The dealers are all standing on their heads and they all wonder where I get the stock and how long I can afford to run this sale at these cut prices. I get the pianos because every manufacturer in the United States knows that I can finance any deal, no matter how big. When they can show me where I can buy at a price that will enable me to undersell any and every piano dealer in Boston or New England they will find me sitting on their doorsteps bright and early in the morning with the Collins bank roll tucked under my arm ready to talk business. If you intend to buy a piano this year attend this sale. I will hold any piano a reasonable length of time for you upon payment of deposit. Prices will never be lower.

Barry Loss Is Felt

Injury May Cost Flag

One hand may rout the Red Sox the pennant and the World's Series—which means a lot of money. In the 1914 World's Series, for instance, each club's share was $81,000, or thereabouts—for four games. A longer series would be worth much more—much more. Now Jack Barry's hand bids fair to cost the team the pennant—and all that money.

Barry was injured early last week, just as the Red Sox were apparently dropping into a slump.

If President Lannin could buy Jack Barry a hand—whole and sound—again—for $50,000, it is a pretty safe bet that he would do it. For the pennant would be worth close to $100,000 to him, and it begins to look as though Lannin's Sox cannot win the pennant without Barry.

Barry is hoping that he will be able to play the last eight games of the season, when his club battles with the Athletics and New York at Fenway Park.

Even that is doubtful, he admits himself. The splints and bandages will not be taken off the hand until Friday and nothing definite will be known until that time.

At present the wonderful ball player, upon whom many think the chances of the pennant rest, is visiting relatives in Meriden, Ct. Barry lives in Worcester. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary McDonough, lives on the first floor of the house, and the idol of the Boston fans on the floor above.

"If it had only been my left hand, it wouldn't have mattered," is what Jack told Mrs. McDonough shortly before he left for Connecticut a few days ago.

"Just the same, don't count the Red Sox out of it. They've got a show without me, but I wish I was in there fighting with the boys."

It was learned today that a small bone on the back of the hand at the base of the first finger is broken. The injury was discovered at the City Hospital, where an X-ray photograph was taken.

The X-ray examination disclosed the fact that Barry has been playing ball with the small bone at the tip of one of the fingers of his throwing hand ever since he entered the ranks of the baseball players. From time to time Barry has complained of sharp pains in the tip of his finger. He is believed to have sustained the injury way back in his college days, when he was playing baseball at Holy Cross.

At the City Hospital Barry was treated by Dr. Fred Cotton. Dr. Gage of Worcester has not seen the injured hand and only learned fully of the care that must be taken, and the time when the splints and bandages be safely removed.

If there is a chance to get into the game without the danger of crippling himself for the rest of his baseball life, Barry will be seen at the pivot corner when the final games of the season are played, the games that may decide whether the pennant shall float over Fenway Park for another year.

The odds, however, seem to be against it. The fracture of one of the small bones in the hand is a serious matter, and generally requires six weeks' time to effect a cure.

JACK BARRY'S injured hand, many experts think, bids fair to cost the Red Sox the pennant and World's Series fortune. This X-ray photograph of the famous player's injured hand shows the location of the fracture (indicated by arrow).

Pal Moore Shades Britt

Bantams in Rapid Mill

By RINGSIDE.

Young Britt, the rising young New Bedford 120-pound boxer, a brother who is a pinch cousin to the bantamweight limit, one who is getting better all the time and who looms up as New England's most promising ring prospect, all divisions considered, covered himself with glory in his twelve-round battle with Young Pal Moore of Memphis, Tenn., one of the high-flyers among the bantams, at the Arena last night.

The two little battlers, making the prescribed weight, 120 pounds at 6 p. m., put up a sparkling battle. There were few dull seconds during the life of their encounter. Referee Larry Conley decided in Moore's favor. Though his verdict proved none too popular with the bulk of the sports in attendance, as New Bedford is located plenty close enough to Boston to be considered one of the city's suburbs, the three newspaper members rooted for Young Britt, the writer strings with the official ruling. Moore won; was entitled to Conley's call, though truth it is Young Britt was far from disgraced.

Moore is a veteran in comparison to Britt. The Southern lad has boxed North, East, South and West and has had it out with Hon. "Kid" Williams, "Kewpie" Ertle and all the rest of the highfaluting scrappers in the class. Down this way Moore has also outstepped Terry Martin of Providence, one corking good little miller. Then, as recent as last Saturday night he gave Patsy Brandt, the noted Brooklyn bantam, a sound beating in his home city.

In Moore, Young Britt met his first out-and-out flatic topliner. Nor was the New Bedford lad phased when he squared off against the Southern star, operating as a windup performer in the big club in one of the biggest cities in the land.

Cool and collected all the way; fighting a slashing battler outshining and outscoring his opponent at times, never in any trouble and never very far back, Young Britt emphasized the fact, even though the referee's decision went against him, he is no flash-in-the-pan. Far be it!

Young Britt is right there with the best of them, and, when he adds a little polish to his performance, also tightens his body defence, he will be able to swat just as heftily in the Pugdom League as Young Pal Moore; in fact, when they come together again, as they are bound to do, its not much worse than even money but that the New Englander will be bracketed.

Young Britt is a determined little plaveman. He owns a lightning left; in fact, his left is swifter and truer than Moore's. His countering was also that of a seasoned performer. Likewise did Britt occasionally whip over his right and land a burly punch.

As for Moore, who was making his debut in Boston, he more than made good all the claims of his publicity bureau. He's a rattling good combination batter and cool, crafty and calculating with it. Moore fought for Britt's body most of the way, and it was the beating he delivered around the waist-line that won for him.

So far as the bruises on the battle went, Moore was really marked up worse than Britt. That's as far as peeks at their two countenances went when the sizzling set-to was over. But Britt was certainly subjected to stung in the body and must be feeling mighty sore today.

The battle, judged in its entirety, pleased the unexpectedly very so-so sized audience. Attendance was dammed full of action. Likewise was the battling of the robust, honest sort.

Walter Ibbs, the seasoned Brooklyn welterweight, evidently had Terry Brooks, "king of the newsboys," undersized. Either Luther pounded a poorly-planned battle or Brooks is a whole lot better than a lot of ring judges figure.

Be that as it may, Butler, owning all the natural advantages over Brooks, height, reach, weight and the rest, and getting off to a wide lead, was caught by the Eddie Mack enthusiast in the stretch run, and, Maffitt Flaherty, who did the honors, rendered a draw verdict.

It was a bad match. Butler always shines his brightest when working with a fast stepper. As for Brooks, the promoters should always dig up the unmistakable tough-nuts of the game when they engage Terry. He sizes up with Battling Nelson, Ad Wolgast and those kind.

It loomed up in advance as if Butler was entirely too polished for Brooks. No, not too good; too speedy a stepper. Terry has only lost about one of his last twenty or thirty starts, and the youth to get the verdict over him was Walter Mohr, the speedy Brooklyn welter. As for the Yank O'Briens, Andy Cortes and that kind, Brooks has whipped them to a pulp.

The Butler-Brooks bout got off to a lamentably slow start. Almost into the seventh canto Terry caught up with Walter and by loud thumping evened up the points he lost at the outset.

The draw was really a win for Brooks, and the next time the Armory A. A. members see him work they want to see him on with an out-and-out slugger. Then, Master Terry is bound to receive some of the long overdue credit due him.

Terry Vathan won a spicy six-rounder from "Kid" Thomas of Lawrence, while Al Gerard put it over Joe Magee. Gerard was well entitled to the verdict he received, though it proved anything but popular.

B. C. Warriors to Begin Practice Tomorrow

Coach Charley Brickley has issued a call for the Boston College football candidates to report for practice at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Brickley, who has received leave of absence from his duties in the coal business at New Haven, looks for a large squad of Maroon and Old Gold warriors to be on hand.

He will coach the squad himself during the present month, but hopes to receive assistance from members of the Harvard staff of coachers, as well as former Boston College stars, late in the month.

Brickley will probably be a familiar figure in the Stadium all Fall. The Harvard authorities hope to get the Everett youth to agree to give at least an hour of his time daily to coaching the field-goal kickers at Cambridge.

Brickley naturally has a weak spot in his heart for his Alma Mater and believes he will be able to make arrangements whereby he can coach at Cambridge without neglecting his duties at Boston College.

WICHITA CLUB GOES UP.

Wichita, Kan., Sept. 6.—The Wichita Western League club has thrown up the sponge. Its players were booked to leave for Denver last night, but failed to depart.

SUITS FOR TYGERS—IF.

Detroit, Sept. 6.—President Frank Navin of the Tygers has promised each player a $50 suit or clothes the day the club passes Boston and takes first place in the American League race.

Galeton Hero of Big Line Races at Hartford

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 6.—Shipped from Holyoke, and reaching the Grand Circuit track at 3 a. m., Galeton, son of Baron Gale, won the 2:24 trot in straight heats, beating a field of four other horses and taking a new mark of 2:17¼.

Azora Axworthy kept her half-mile record clean when she spurted away from the field in the 2:15 trot. Empress of Russia was returned an easy winner in the 2:18 trot.

The events were competed over the half-mile track recently completed and built inside the present mile oval. Despite its newness the track was fast.

MEDALIST FOWNES LOSES

Oakmont Player Put Out In First Round by C. B. Buxton—Jesse Guilford Among Winners.

DRAW FOR TODAY.

Morston and Gardner; Jones and Dyer; Ormiston and Guilford; Hatsky and White; Anderson and Hunter; Smith and Evans; Torkelson and Adair; Small and Buxton.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—The Metropolitan district has five contestants left among the sixteen who entered their way into the second round of match play in the national amateur golf championship tournament at the Merion Cricket Club.

The West has three players in, the South two, Baltimore two, Philadelphia two and Boston and Pittsburgh one each.

There were two upsets. W. C. G. Fownes, Jr., the medalist and former titleholder, lost on the home green to F. Buxton, Huntington Valley, and E. M. Byers, Allegheny, was put out by H. T. Jones, Jr., the fifteen-year-old Atlanta, Ga., boy, 2 and 1.

The hardest match of the day was won by John G. Anderson, Baltimore, who beat D. E. Sawyer, Wheaton, one up in 37 holes, after Sawyer missed an 18-inch put for a win on the home green.

The favorites, with the exception of Chick Evans, the open champion, had easy wins. Evans was forced to go to the 18th green for a three and one win over Nelson Whitney, Audubon.

Robert A. Gardner, national amateur champion, played the best golf since his arrival, getting a 74 in his morning round with J. M. Ward, Garden City. Gardner won 8 and 5.

Jesse Guilford, Woodland, was in splendid stroke and vanquished C. J. Comstock, Jr., Sleepy Hollow, 10 and 9.

PRINCETON ELEVEN GETS BUSY MONDAY

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 6.—Lake Minnewaska, N. Y., has been chosen by the Princeton football management for the early practice of the eleven. The players will assemble there next Monday and practice will begin the following day.

The work of the candidates will be under the personal direction of Coach John H. Rush. The men will return to Princeton October 6 for their first game against North Carolina the following day.

NEW YORK RING TALK.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Tomorrow night at the Clermont Rink, in Brooklyn, Mel Coogan, who has been boxing in Boston, will hook up with Jack Logan, the local colored lightweight.

THE new Al McCoy is working hard for his tan-round battle with Young Dan Sullivan at Brown's Far Rockaway A. A., Friday night.

AT the new Polo A. A. Friday night Joe Malone will give battle to Bobby Gardner.

Britton-Welling Hooted by Boxing Fans at Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 6.—In a hesitation waltz affair, Jack Britton, welterweight champion, defeated Joe Welling of Chicago, and contender for the title, in a ten-round bout.

The fight was staged before a fair sized crowd, which at its conclusion gave vent to their disapproval by oaths and utterances against both contestants.

Hardly a blow of telling effect was struck by either fighter in the entire ten rounds. Britton outwrestled Welling by at least ten pounds.

ONE-HOUR RACE AT BEACH

TONIGHT'S REVERE CARD.

One-hour motor-paced team race—Clarence Carman, Jamaica, L. I., and George Wiley, Syracuse, N. Y., vs. Leon Didier, Paris, and Victor Linart, Antwerp.

Amateur and professional events.

Starting time—8:15 p. m.

The final meet before the big world's cycling derby will be staged at the Revere cycle track tonight, with a one-hour motor-paced team race between Linart and Didier and Carman and Wiley as the headliner.

These two teams met a short while ago and the American combination was returned the victor. Naturally, the French-Belgian outfit will make every effort to even up matters, especially when it is considered this event will have an indirect bearing on the derby.

The result of this watching should produce one of the best cards of the season, for every pace-follower is sparring for a chance to get into the derby, showing what it means to them. With the derby prize goes the world's championship crown, now held by Linart.

Williams Back on Top

Johnston Is Dethroned

New York, Sept. 6.—Arm in arm they slowly walked off the court—Williams, the champion, and Johnston, the dethroned champion. Heart against heart, skill against skill, and nerves against nerves, they had battled through five heart-breaking sets, and Williams—Richard Norris Williams, 2nd, of Philadelphia and Harvard—won, not because he had a stouter heart than Johnston—William M. Johnston of San Francisco—or more skill, or more nerve, but because he won—just won. The score was 4—6, 6—4, 6—8, 6—4, 6—4.

It was some battle—this match in the final round of the national lawn tennis championship singles at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I. And when it was all over they walked off the courts. Williams walked jauntily—he had won—but they were tired and weary, and glad it was all over.

It takes a great deal of stamina to go through a national championship tournament and Johnston, because he had to contend with greater opposition in his half of the draw, was a bit drawn. But he gave of his best and last, and, when it was all over, Johnston sat down on a chair beside the court and buried his head in his hands—exhausted and disappointed.

Williams, who had flung himself down upon the grass, arose, slipped his arm through Johnston's, and they turned towards the clubhouse.

BATTLE ALL THE WAY.

Entering upon the fifth and deciding set upon equal terms, Johnston, primed for a supreme effort, thought his strength had left him, rallied and netted off three games in a row.

He won the first game after it had three times gone to deuce, and followed this up by breaking through Williams' service in the second. In the third game, Johnston scored four points to Williams' one and went out into the lead at 3-0 in games—in the set which was to decide the national championship. Johnston, it appeared certain, was going to retain the title which he won last year as a boy of twenty.

But here, facing a handicap of three games, Williams rallied his strength and embarked upon the greatest rally of what may be characterized as the greatest tournament in the history of tennis.

WILLIAMS AT HIS BEST.

He won the fourth game, the fifth on Johnson's service, the sixth on his own, and the seventh on Johnston's, and, by winning the eighth on his own, completed a string of five consecutive games and went out into the lead at 5-3.

In the ninth game Johnston stopped his rally short. The little California won this game, and, by winning it, brought the score up to 5-4 in games, with Williams leading.

Then came the tenth game. Williams served in this game, and outed the ball on Johnston's return of his delivery. He won the next three points and came within a point of victory. He scored the winning point, but it was only after deuce had been called four times.

Trailing at 15-40 Johnston executed two placements and brought the score up to deuce. He netted the ball on the next point and it was Williams' advantage with only one point needed for victory and the national championship. Johnston scored that point by a great placement and again brought the scores to deuce.

ROBINSON BACK ON SQUAD

Crimson's Only "H" Quarterback Declared Eligible by Faculty—Players Back Home Tomorrow.

Fine news has sifted into the Harvard football camp with the announcement that Billy Robinson, the only "H" man in the quarterback squad, has been declared eligible to again wear the Crimson in the coming gridiron campaign.

Robinson, who is slated to be one of the most important cogs in the Harvard football steam roller, hit the probation tobogaan last Spring, and has regained his standing with the college office, only after the hardest kind of plugging in the Harvard Summer School.

Robinson will leave Nova Scotia today where he has been on a vacation and will report with the remainder of the squad tomorrow.

With the possibility of a lean year in scores at Harvard, Robinson's reinstatement pleases Coaches Haughton and Leary. He is by far the fittest and most experienced of the quarterbacks and has a kicking leg that gives great scoring promise this Fall.

In order to give him every advantage the Harvard solons are planning to have Coach Charley Brickley of Boston College give Robinson every possible minute he can during the coming season.

Harvard's squad of players report at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for the first home practice of the season. Nearly fifty men are expected to be on hand, including the backs and tackles who have been working during the past few days at Ogunquit, Maine.

BRAVES NOTES

THOUGH yesterday was an exceedingly gloomy day there were more than 15,000 who paid to watch the fun. The crowd was reasonably large that time, however.

OSCAR J. DUGEY, once of the Braves, continues to be chief of the Pat Moran strategy board. Dugey can always be found on the coaching lines. He's some coacher, too.

BILL SHETTSLINE, the Philadelphia club's business manager, felt sore when he heard of the crowd at the Labor Day pastiming. Bill had his team here July Fourth for a pair of games. Old Jupe Pluvius kicked in, though, and there was nothing doing.

* * *

BOTH games yesterday should have gone to the limit, one, the unfortunate pitching slip cost them the decision and in the other inability to make hits count for much more than a base was the telling source. If the Braves hope to land the pennant they must play more consistent ball and take full advantage of all possibilities.

* * *

MARANVILLE resembled a football player, or a pugilist, more than a ball player, when he made his appearance for play yesterday. The bandage on his nose was suggestive of anything but ball playing. As yet he doesn't know just how long he will have to wear it. It didn't appear to bother him very much, however.

* * *

GEORGE DAVIS, who was sent to Providence, has explained to the club and may get a chance to display his wares any day now. It will be recalled that it was against the Phillies he pitched his no-hit game. Since that game George hasn't done so much. However, Fred Mitchell may whip him into shape for a game or two, yet.

* * *

ALEXANDER was in hot water almost always yesterday, but managed to escape a defeat. Thanks to some fine fielding behind him. Alec has a habit of ducking when a bounding ball goes through the box. He ducks on all right, however, for both Niehoff and Rancraft are ever to get the pill in time for the throw to first.

Braves' Twin Bill Off Two Games Tomorrow

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

K. O. Pluvius holding relationship of one sort or another to Bill Shettsline, the Philadelphia business manager, called today and as a result there is no pastiming. Both games scheduled for this afternoon were called off and will be played later when the Braves visit Philadelphia for the last series of the regular season.

As a result of the postponement the Braves and Phillies hook up in one double-header tomorrow at the Home of Big Things. Possibly the doings today are in some way related to that "unnatural darkness" which Bill Klem discovered during yesterday's pastiming.

Stallings relishes a chance to rest his athletes up and only hope that conditions which prevail here may be somewhat similar in New York.

However, in no small degree the Phils at this time of the year. Moran has his veterans, of one drive, going at top speed and with some mighty classy hurling they are winning game after game. Their record stands now at six straight cops and one tied game. Today Pitchburg Pat expressed a desire to enlarge the string by taking both of the contests remaining to be played here.

WILL USE BEST.

Stallings is equally as anxious to stop the Patmorans as he is the Robins, and will use the best he has to accomplish it. It would not be at all surprising if Dick Rudolph were back on the task again. Jess Barnes seems likely to hurt the other game. The Miracle Man has kept his left-handers strictly off the Phils this year, and if possible will continue to do so.

Moran will in all probability bring Eppademix Rixey out in one of the games and Alexander in the other. Rixey and Alexander have been doing the bulk of the hurling for the Phils, and it seems sure that the long southpaw gets back into the fray tomorrow.

RUDOLPH TO WORK.

Rudolph went but five innings in yesterday's game and had a remarkably easy time of it all the way. He was hardly ever in trouble, of his own making, and allowed but one blow in the five games he worked. Rudolph will surely hurt if he feels right, and being anxious to partici-pate in a certain big clash which comes slightly later this Fall he's in perfect trim about all the time now.

The Phillies are about the most peppery bunch that have come to Boston this year. They started chattering the minute they took the field and when Bill Klem discovered "unnatural darkness" they were still chattering. They play the hardest possible ball and are giving their pitchers excellent support. Especially is this true of the middield pair, Bancroft and Niehoff, though the latter did have a pair of bobbles during yesterday afternoon.

OUT FOR A REPEAT.

Pat Moran now feels confident that his athletes will repeat and looks for the long home stay to do much toward bringing them their second pennant since the league was organized. The team has all the confidence in the world and plays the game every minute of it. The look like the most formidable opponents the Braves have to face. They certainly look 100 per cent. stronger than the Robins.

Stallings was more or less upset this morning as a result of the breaks yesterday. He figured the first game should surely have been won and can't see any reason at all for the failure to land the second game. All those hits that went for nothing certainly have rankled the Miracle Man. But he's right there today scheming to win the pair tomorrow and not at all out of the big hunt for the gonfalon.

Among the ball players there is still considerable bad feeling over conditions at the park. They cannot see why a fence of some sort or another is not erected atop the center field wall. They declare with emphasis that the sky line has killed their batting effectiveness and that unless something is done they can't hit and not being able to hit can't win ball games.

RABBIT WAS GAME.

The writer once figured that such matters were fallacies among the ball players, but when he hears the report go consistently and from players on teams other than the Braves he begins to believe that there is considerable merit to their complaint. It was recently reported that the trouble would be remedied, and still later reported that the remedy wouldn't be forthcoming until next year.

Rabbit Maranville came in for much applause yesterday when the fans saw him out on the field with his nose encased in a surgeon's bandage. The little fellow took all sorts of chances, for he realized that on the games now being played hinges the pennant. It would appear as though the strips would to a certain extent impede his vision, but though he only had one safe blow yesterday it didn't seem to make much difference.

Stallings is far from satisfied with the way his infield is going at the present time. He has Deal, the youngster, purchased from Terre Haute, on hand, and may decide to send him in any day now. However he does not care to take too many chances with minor league players during so important a series as that which his men are now playing. He is making strenuous efforts to land Steve Yerkes, formerly of the Red Sox, who is playing a slashing game for Atlanta, in the Southern League, and hitting well over .300 at the present time.

The season for purchasing players has closed, and the Braves cannot buy the player outright at this time. However, there may be some way in which the Braves can secure him. He certainly would fit into the scheme exceptionally well at this time. Were there any hope of Johnny Evers being able to get back into the game this year he would not be so much worried. However, with Evers still badly crippled, he can't see any way of landing him now.

Odds Against Boston Teams in Flag Races

THE following odds were laid today by a New York bookie on the outcome of the pennant races:

NATIONAL LEAGUE:
Philadelphia 6-5.
Boston 3-2.
Brooklyn 11-5.

AMERICAN LEAGUE:
Detroit 7-5.
Boston 2-1.
Chicago 9-2.
St. Louis 7-1.
New York 15-1.
Cleveland 15-1.

Tigers and the Phillies Are Favorites

By FRANK G. MENKE.
Sporting Editor of the International News Service.

New York, Sept. 6—The Tigers and the Phillies have been made the favorites in the pennant battles in their respective organizations by the bookies. The general opinion today seems to be that both the Red Sox and the Dodgers, who led their league for so long, have shot their bolt. And at the same time those folks feel that the Tigers and the Phillies both have started spurts that will inject them into the World's Series.

The amazing dash of the Phillies, which carried them in less than a week from a poor third to the crest of the league, has fanned into a fierce flame the hope for another champion-ship in Quaker-town. And the American the Tigers seem to have the bulge, no matter from which angle a person does his squinting.

The Braves loom up as the most formidable foe of Pat Moran's pets. The Dodgers may come again in the final drive, but they must come soon or they will be distanced. If the Braves steady down quickly they have a golden opportunity. If they don't, good-night.

The awful slump of the Red Sox during the past two weeks has been one of the surprises of the season. The reason for the drop, of course, is apparent when one studies the recent batting averages of the Sox. And so we come to the Tigers. Up to the present moment the Jungaleers have won twenty-five out of thirty-one of their at home games against the Eastern clubs. And before the season ends they are to play thirteen more games against the Easterners in their own ballwick. If the Tigers maintain the past average—five victories to one defeat—they will be "in" and the pennant flag will fly from the Detroit peak.

Carrigan Is Hustling Is Figuring Phillies

Philadelphia, Sept. 6—When Boss Bill Carrigan discovered that the Phillies had edged into first places by putting it over on the driving Braves in the fish the World's Championship cried and his clan began to see visions of another World's Series between the Red Sox and Pat Moran's surprises Stranger things have happened, and if it is in the wood the Red Sox are going to repeat, despite the efforts of the Detroit bunch to crowd them off the perch.

WOULD PLEASE PHILADELPHIA.

Nothing would please local fans more than another series between the Red Sox and Phillies. The admirers of the Moran men are loud in their declarations that if the Phillies are strong enough to beat the Braves and the Dodgers they will tack a world's championship to the local pole. It looks as if Leonard and Bush would be the pitchers today.

The Sox ran into a surprise party yesterday in the opening game of the double bill with the Mackmen. They cracked the delivery of John Johnson, a youthful college twirler who came to the Athletics late this season and the youngster let them down with seven hits. The Sox lost that game 5 to 2 and Carrigan wasn't pleased, for every win counts these days with the race so close. The Sox grabbed the second game 7 to 1.

HITLESS FOR FIVE INNINGS.

Johnson held the Red Sox hitless for five innings, when three errors by Witt allowed a run to scamper across the pan. With the bases loaded in the fifth Johnson walked Janvrin and Scott scampered across the rubber with another tally.

Mr. Shore was selected by Chief Carrigan to help the Boston team remain at the top of the American League race and Mr. Shore proved a dismal failure. In the fifth inning he went back to his hotel and Mr. Ruth took up Shore's burden, but he, too, lacked the stuff to hook the Athletics.

CARRIGAN BANISHED.

In the second game "Iron Man" Myers worked against Mayo, the underhand flinger from the Bay State. He had the Mackmen at his mercy and very seldom was a hit knocked out of the infield.

The Sox did much wrangling in the first game and Carrigan was banished by Bill O'Loughlin.

Dan Brown, formerly of Harrisburg, Pa., team, played his first game in a Mack uniform on the home lot yesterday and made a hit with the crowd.

In the first bout he stepped to the plate four times. He walked, sacrificed, sent a long fly and was out on an infield pop. In the second game he sacrificed several times and banged out a single.

Nehf in Hospital; Allen Is Also On Sicklist

Art Nehf, the Braves' crack young southpaw, has been added to the hospital list. He was taken from his rooming house in Brookline to a Back Bay hospital last night suffering from a high fever, and typhoid fever is feared.

Nehf was at Braves Field Saturday, but Sunday night complained of being ill. Dr. Whelan, the club's physician, was called and he ordered Nehf removed to the hospital.

In addition to Nehf, Frank Allen is also under the weather. This leaves Tyler the only southpaw in the squad.

RED SOX LAND JENKINS.

Cincinnati, Sept. 6—The National Commission has ordered the Griffin (Alabama-Georgia League) club to execute an agreement with the Boston American League club for the sale of Outfielder Jenkins for $150.

FALL PRACTICE FOR HARVARD TOSSERS

Candidates for the Harvard baseball team will report for Fall practice on or about Monday, October 2. Captain George Abbot will be in charge of the work until Fred Mitchell can lay aside his duties with the Braves. Mitchell is expected to renew his contract at Harvard, but instead of agreeing to coach for another year will practically sign up for three years.

REX HUTCHINSON IS BACK WITH THE ELIS

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 6—Yale's football stars have begun to gather. Captain Hitch Hitchcock, Secretary and Trainer Mack met the candidates. Only three attempted any exercise—Rex Hutchinson, fullback, for the freshmen team two years ago, and a member of the famous twilights eleven of last season, half of the freshmen last year and a strong candidate for tackle this Fall, and Stewart, substitute halfback for two seasons.

Sterling Ale

When a man tells you he likes ale, ten to one he is thinking of Sterling.

RIGHT here in New England—America's ale centre—the place where folks really know ale—Sterling is called for by name more often than all other ales put together.

That comes mighty near proving just what your nickel wants to know about ale.

ON Jimmy's insisting that the woman for whom he was searching must be there, the proprietor volunteered to search for her.

Back to the kitchen went Jimmy again, guided this time by the still sleepy owner, who pointed to another open door opening on a back yard, and insisted that the woman must have vanished through this. Jimmy went out the door and crossed around to the front of the restaurant.

There was no trace of the missing woman.

"Could it have been John Miles' fiancee?" I interrupted.

"More likely her mother! No, this was a hard-looking customer, who could take care of herself. Well, I didn't see much to do, so I stood staring idly into space, waiting for luck to blow something my way.

"There was a little bungalow across the road that seemed to come up and hit my consciousness. Nothing very specially noticeable about it—but it just insisted on calling attention to itself. All of a sudden the door flew open and a pretty girl with a lot of fluffy hair blowing around her face started to come out. Before she could get through, though, a hand seized her shoulder and jerked her back!

"Say, Miss Fairfax, that girl had a queer expression on her face. I'll not forget it in a hurry. Frightened doesn't cover the case. She looked as if she had seen something she wanted to forget—the way I used to imagine when I was a little chap Bluebeard's wife looked a second after she got the door open. That's all there is to my story, but it makes me feel as if Blue Cove needed our very particular and special attention. What do you think?"

Miss Fairfax Considers

I sat and considered the matter for a moment as the train swung through the marshy country. Newspaper people do acquire a sort of sixth sense—the quality which Shakespeare might have described in picturesque terms, as "By the pricking of my thumbs, something wicked this way comes." Newspaper parlance is far less elegant, but it expresses itself in anatomical terms, too!

We talk about "a nose for news." Whatever the sense may be, whether it is a logical deduction or a cultivated instinct latent in most humans, newspaper people do feel a story. It was evident enough that the counterfeiter of Forty-second street and my unknown "deserted bridegroom" and the pretty girl who had been dragged back so suddenly into the bungalow and the sleepy proprietor of the little restaurant were all parts of a story. But could we fit the parts together?

A Thrilling Outlook

This promised to be a thrilling picture puzzle to Jimmy—a story for the managing editor—and both of these things and more to me. It offered a chance to help John Miles and the unknown girl whose eyes had held the frightened look of one who has had a glimpse of Bluebeard's chamber of horrors.

When the train pulled in at the dingy little station which marked Blue Cove, I was athrill with desire to solve our mystery.

The "depot" at Blue Cove was the typical country station. A few loiterers stood about, and there were one or two "station hacks"—four-wheelers with listless-looking, wornout cab horses hanging their heads in utter dejection, while vacant-eyed drivers dozed on the boxes, with no particular anticipation of a fare.

We embarked in the one of these which appeared most likely to hold together while it rattled us down the country lane. Jimmy bade the driver take us to the home of John Miles. That seemed a name to compel interest and respectful attention. The driver's eyes brightened a bit and the horse was made to show an unexpected animation. With a clatter of hoofs and a flourish of the whip we set out.

A Prim Little Cottage

A short drive brought us to a prim little cottage set well back from the road. We got out and went up a neat gravel path bordered with beds of weeds, william and phlox and zinnia, white close against the house were cheerful cardinal flowers and cosmos. It was a homely place, and one felt instinctively that the owner would be a likable young farmer of the healthy sunburned type who wore corduroys and boots and had clean, old-fashioned ideals regarding women and life.

The door opened in answer to our knock the prediction of the flower beds and trim paths fulfilled themselves pleasantly. A dear little old lady opened the door for us and led us at once into a neat living room where a

John Miles and his mother were simple people who seemed greatly impressed by the fact that they were entertaining Beatrice Fairfax and Jimmy Barton good-looking young chap, who realized all my ideals of what John Miles ought to be, met us with a welcoming smile.

The Milesses were simple country folk who seemed greatly impressed by the fact that they were entertaining Beatrice Fairfax and James Barton of the New York Evening Journal. Some flattery makes one feel belittled and cheapened.

The attitude of the Miles family was so gracious and simple that I had a feeling of rejoicing because my work had attracted their favorable attention. Being appreciated by simple little Mrs. Miles seemed like being decorated by a reigning monarch!

We explained to John Miles just exactly why we thought that there might be a possibility of our helping him solve the mystery of the disappearance of the girl he loved. But it seemed as if he were the one who could offer most aid in solving the mystery. For the moment Jimmy told him how he had followed the woman he suspected of being a counterfeiter to the restaurant, John Miles broke in with the utmost excitement.

"Was there a little bungalow opposite the restaurant?"

Then Jimmy went on and told him of the girl who had come to the door of the bungalow and been dragged back so suddenly.

John Miles could hardly restrain his excitement. "That's Jean," he cried; "I'm sure it's Jean. We must start at once. I'll go out and hitch up my mare, for I don't dare waste a minute. I'm sure it was Jean, and I think the woman you saw was Madame Gaillard. Jean has been her secretary for quite a while. And now that I think about it, I never did like her boss."

On the way over to the bungalow John Miles told us his story. It threw no light on the mystery; instead, sadly enough, it wrapped us deeper than ever in the mystery.

The first thing before he had telephoned to the bungalow where Jean Moore was acting as stenographer to Madame Gaillard and had completed arrangements for their marriage. Jean was an orphan—friendless and alone.

A Quick Love Affair

He had met her some weeks before when first she came to act as secretary for the recluse who lived in the French bungalow. He had fallen in love with her almost at once.

"I wasn't very slow about telling her so, either. She was to get through at Madam Gaillard's yesterday afternoon, and she promised to meet mother and me at the parsonage at six for a quiet little wedding—we were going to be so happy.

"Well, I got to the parsonage at six, but Jean wasn't there. I telephoned the bungalow, and the negro servant said Madame Gaillard had gone to town and might not be back till late, and that Jean had gone without leaving word where she was going.

"I waited at the bungalow another hour; then I left mother there and began to scour the country. There wasn't a trace of her, though I hunted all night. But now I feel hopeful again. You will help me find my Jean, won't you?"

"We will try," said Jimmy Barton, quietly, when John Miles had finished his story of the disappearance of Jean Moore on the very eve of her wedding.

I had a sudden sense of power. Jimmy would "try"—try honestly and with all the kindness and finesse at his command; and I meant to do my part, too! But Jean Moore was not the first girl who had disappeared in the light of day, only to be swallowed up by the blackness of night. If she were alive, we would find her—but was she still alive?

A New Development

The men seemed to be the master minds in our little expedition, and for the present I thought it best to accept their plans.

Young Miles drove to the edge of a grove, led his horse in and tied her. Then he bade us wait in the restaurant while he went to the bungalow for an interview with Madame Gaillard.

Jimmy and I walked slowly over to the little inn and lingered long enough to see Miles go up to the door of the bungalow and ring the bell; then we sauntered into the restaurant with an air which we thought well calculated to deceive. But there was no one to appreciate our histrionic powers. Possibly if we had been real guests in search of refreshment we would have pounded on the table and demanded attention, but as we were merely amateur detectives, we sat still, patiently awaiting the arrival of "mine host." It would have been extremely advantageous if we had had any way of guessing just what the missing host was doing.

Presently we got extremely tired of the vast indifference to our presence which prevailed and Jimmy decided to go on a little tour of investigation. He crossed over to the kitchen and vanished for a second.

Then I heard my name called with gentle insistence, and I ran to the kitchen. I saw part of the floor jerking up lowly. Evidently it was a trap dor and someone was sneaking up from the basement with intent to come through it. Jimmy gave me a quick order to go into the other room and bring him a tablecloth which he would tear into strips and use to bind the approaching "enemy."

I felt my heart fluttering rather strangely. Suppose the enemy overpowered Jimmy? But a second later my faith in the redoubtable Mr. Barton, coupled with the knowledge that he had the advantage of lying hidden in ambush, came to the rescue. I rushed after the tablecloth and the thin cotton cloth tore easily into strips.

By the time I got back Jimmy was holding a man powerless at his feet. It did not take long to tie and gag him, and as soon as that was accomplished, Jimmy rolled him over and took a gun from his pocket. He handed it to me with an air as matter of course, as if I had been in the habit of handling firearms as frequently as a typewriter.

"It's the proprietor," he explained. "Guard the fellow. I'm going down into his subterranean cavern."

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

Regrets

At a party one evening a married lady was entertaining the assembled company with an account of their first quarrel, and how, after making it up with one another, her husband had planted a tree in remembrance of it.

"If we had only done that," whispered the minister's wife to her husband, "what a splendid avenue we might have had."

Had Suspicions

"Behind the altar," said the cathedral guide to a party of tourists, "lies Richard II, on the right, and outside lies Mary Queen of Scots. And who"—halting above an unmarked flagging in the stone floor and addressing a tourist from London—"who do you think, sir, is a-lying 'ere on this spot?"

"Well," answered the visitor, "I don't know for sure, but I have my suspicions."

Their Married Life

Frances Comes to Helen's Aid

(Copyright 1916, International News Service.)

Frances had outlined her plan carefully to Helen.

"I am sure," she said confidently, "that Babbie will be only too delighted to ask him—an extra man is such a blessing."

Helen demurred and Frances persisted gaily. "Helen, you're not showing any sporting blood at all. I'm disappointed in you. What was that woman's name you told me about early in the Spring? The one you helped in the affair with her husband and the young widow?"

"You mean Laura Richards?" said Helen, with sudden interest. Frances's words had brought up the entire affair very clearly. How different matters had seemed when she was managing things for another woman. And still she had no real proof of Warren's fickleness as Laura had. Just suppose also, Helen, had happened to walk into a hotel some day and should see Warren eating lunch with Lola Wilcox?

And yet Warren would be sure to find a legitimate excuse for it. If it had not been for the fact that she dreaded to find out the truth she would have probed for the truth in the matter of the automobile accident the night she had been in Cleveland. But there was a certain reticence about discovering Warren in an affair of the kind. Helen was the kind of a woman who hurried to know things, and yet hated to ask and find out.

"Yes, her name was Laura Richards," Frances said. "You were just great in that affair, Helen, and now you are not willing to try the same tactics yourself."

"But it seems like using Ned Burns for an exigency," Helen insisted. "You know I don't care for him, and his attentions embarrass me terribly. I have hated the easy way he has taken upon himself to run in whenever he likes, and his fondness for Winifred makes too good an excuse."

A NEEDED LESSON

"I know, dear, cut I'm afraid Warren really needs the lesson. If there were another man at the home party that we could use, I wouldn't insist upon Ned Burns, but there is no one else. Besides he is devoted to Lola Wilcox, although she can manage any number, I guess. Then there is Carp. I'll lend him to you if you like." And Frances laughed gaily, nervously.

Once more Helen's mind took in the significance of Carp Atwood's attention to Frances. It was more than dangerous, it was foolhardy for Frances to encourage the man as she was doing. Perhaps it was all for the best that Frances should be given her own way in the matter. It might serve to take some of her interest away from Carp for the time being.

As soon as Frances saw signs of Helen's yielding, she bubbled over with plans. "Ned will act the devoted slave if you encourage him the least bit, Helen," she said gleefully.

"But Frances, dear, I hate to play with fire like that."

"I know you do, but really playing with fire isn't half bad. You've never tried it. That's what Warren is doing if he is bothering with Lola Wilcox."

"O don't say that," said Helen shrinking. "I don't know that he is, dear, I think it would drive me mad if I really thought there was anything serious.

"I didn't mean to hurt you," Frances said, penitently. "You know I have only your good at heart, and I do think Warren ought to be taught a lesson."

"I don't understand it in the least," Helen said mournfully. "Warren never used to be this way. Of course, I was often miserable because he didn't make love to me as I wanted him to do, but at least there was never any admiration for other women in his make-up. I sometimes wonder if seeing life as you people live it has changed Warren."

Frances laughed. "What do you mean?"

"Well, for instance, the first time he saw you smoking he was shocked, now he doesn't think anything of it."

"Of course, he doesn't, neither do I," said Frances. "I don't smoke, you know, because it's wicked, I do it because I like it, and I see nothing wrong in it. Of course, Warren is the conventional type of man, and he will probably not care about going half way."

"If he approves at all of things of that kind, he'll go to the other extreme, and that's where people of our class have to suffer. But see here, we are getting away from the subject. What shall we do about it? Shall I telephone Babbie?"

"But, Frances, what are you going to tell Babbie? I won't have you say that you want her to invite a friend of mine. I should die."

IT IS ALL ARRANGED

"Oh, you precious Infant. Of course I won't tell her anything of the kind. I'll just ask her if she needs an extra man, and then I'll casually mention that that nice Burns man, the friend of the Curtis family, has nothing to do over Sunday, and as he is in town for the week end it is her duty to invite him down. There, how does that sound?"

"Frances, you're a wonder. I am not surprised that you can invent impossible plots for novels."

"Impossible, indeed," Frances said gaily, now that she had gained her point. "But wait until you read my book, my dear; it's a dip into the psychological—the Henry James type—very difficult."

"Well, what would you advise me to do?" said Helen, too engrossed with her own troubles to exclaim over Frances' new novel.

"There is nothing to do; simply act natural and be decent to Ned Burns. You needn't be nice to him until you see how matters are progressing. If you find that your suspicions regarding Warren are all wrong, why, don't do anything. If you find that he is interested, even mildly, arange your own campaign. Disappear with Ned ostentatiously. Why, you can manage it beautifully, Helen, without doing a single thing that is wrong."

"I'd be better satisfied if Ned weren't so serious," Helen said doubtfully. "However, I'll do it, and I'll count on you to manage for me with Babbie. Warren has neglected for us, so we'll motor down some time tomorrow. Good-bye, dear, and thank you. You have done me a world of good."

(The next instalment of this absorbing series will appear here soon.)

The Difference

Solomon and Esau were very great friends; indeed, so friendly were they that Solomon did not know how best to remind Esau of a little matter which remained unsettled between them.

Then a bright idea struck him, and he spake to Esau thuswise:

"Esau, what is the difference between the words remember and recollect?"

Esau could see no difference.

"Then," said Solomon, "let me show you the difference. You remember that fine waistcoat you had from me?"

Esau: "Yes, sir."

Solomon: "Do you recollect paying for it?"

And Esau knew it was Sol's score that time.

How Divorce Is Blighting the Harem

An American woman describes some of the tragedies hidden behind the veil the Mohammedan woman wears, in next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.

In Our Wonderful World

Blind people—those who have been born blind—are, as is well known, exceedingly clever with their fingers, but it is not often we hear of a watchmaker who was born blind, and yet there have been instances of the kind.

A famous blind watchmaker lived at Holbeach, in Lincolnshire, England. His name was Rippin, and though completely blind he could take to pieces and put together again watches of most delicate construction with the greatest ease and in quicker time than most watchmakers who have the advantages of good eyesight.

On one occasion some of the tiny wheels and screws used in his trade were stolen from him, but the thief was captured with the property on his person, and Rippin identified it by his delicate sense of touch. A Barnstable watch and clock maker brought up his blind son to his trade, and he proved so skilful that on more than one occasion he detected faults in timepieces which other tradesmen had failed to discover.

A remarkable meal was one eaten a few years ago by a party of Belgian antiquaries. The bread was made from wheat found in a chamber of one of the Egyptian Pyramids, and which was probably growing before Nineveh was built and when Abraham was still in the flesh. The dessert included apples found in the ruins of Pompeii, which were more than eighteen centuries old; and the guests partook of wine recovered from a vault in Corinth—wine which was old when Columbus was playing as a boy in the streets of Genoa.

The milk problem has been solved in Japan, where cows are scarce, by an ancient use of artificial milk derived from the soja bean. The beans are first soaked, then boiled in water, until the liquid turns white, when sugar and phosphate of potash are added and the boiling continued until the fluid is obtained corresponding very accurately with ordinary condensed milk. When the water is added soja milk is scarcely distinguishable from fresh cow's milk.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mucilloid cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

Skin Diseases Soon Yield to Resinol

PLANT JUICE GAVE WONDERFUL RELIEF

lief—Plant Juice. It is a purely vegetable combination, is welcome to the weakest stomach, and by causing the liver to digest perfectly the power of self elimination is restored and health results.

Daily testimonials are received in signed statements from well known people, telling of the wonderful benefit they have derived from the use of Plant Juice, and Mrs. Nina Chaffee, residing at No. 17 Magazine Street, Cambridge, and has many friends and acquaintances in that city, will be glad to learn of her recovery to health. She states:

"For several years I have suffered with stomach trouble, which took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia. I had a feeling of fullness after I ate, as my food fermented in my stomach, and I was badly bloated with gas. I suffered agony at times, and was quite nervous. I had taken Plant Juice to give me relief. I had headaches so severe that I thought my liver was affected, and I had terrible pains in my back, my tongue was coated, and I was so nervous I could not get any sleep at night. I was going to the doctor, but I felt as tired as if I had not been to bed at all. I have taken Plant Juice for several weeks and it has made a new woman of me. I never felt so well in my life, and anything I want without fear of the consequences. Words cannot express my gratitude as Plant Juice has entirely cured me."

Such words as these and those of many others which have been printed have a wide influence, for they come from people of standing and integrity, who have given Plant Juice a fair trial and have been greatly benefited.

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

NEW FILM PLAY SHOWS VICE TRAFFIC

By FRED J. M'ISAAC.

"THE LITTLE GIRL NEXT DOOR," which is running at the Globe Theatre, is a new kind of photoplay, a picture report of the crusade by the Illinois Vice Commission, which smashed the white slavers' ring in Chicago, shut up the red light district and made the great city by Lake Michigan as peaceful and as safe to live in as a country village.

Everybody who was connected with the big campaign only recently completed was so proud of his participation that the company which made the film had no difficulty in persuading the Vice Commissioners, the social workers, the leading clergy, public officials and others to appear in the big picture.

FAMOUS MEN IN FILM.

Vice-President Marshall, Champ Clark, Congressman Mann, who is responsible for the Mann White Slave Law, Mayor Thompson of Chicago, and Lieutenant-Governor O'Hara of Illinois, chairman of the Vice Commission, all take part in the film.

Lieutenant-Governor O'Hara, who is in Boston this week, endorsed it in no uncertain terms as instructive and leaving a good effect on those who see it.

The picture follows in form the melodrama "On Trial," which had a sensational success a year ago. As a witness begins to tell his or her story, the courtroom fades and the narrative is acted out.

Of course most of the witnesses before the Vice Commission, which is shown in session before the film with the same actors as actually participated in the investigation, are girls who have been rescued from the red light district.

SHOW GIRLS' EXPERIENCES.

The experiences of these girls are shown in great detail. Some of them fell victims to cadets whom they met in dance halls, others were telephone girls, waitresses and saleagirls, who succumbed to one trick or another of white slavers. The film invades the red light district and shows sensational scenes within the walls of houses that no longer exist in Chicago.

How politics was linked with vice in Chicago is shown in the most dramatic of all these episodes. The picture is one which commands respect because of the dignity of some of the participants.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—The "romance of a boy, a girl and a dozen" is the playbills describe Mr. Eugene Walter's dramatization of the novel by John Fox, Jr., "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come."

Three performances at the Plymouth Theatre, three delighted audiences, have this week revealed to Boston a "homey" play.

The scenes of "The Little Shepherd" are laid in the Cumberland Mountains of Kentucky just before the Civil War. There is a feud on, between the Dillon and the Turner families.

But the central figures are "Chad," a waif of a dozen years or so, and his shepherd dog, "Jack." Master George Dunn's impersonation of "Chad" is one of the finest achievements of a boy actor Boston has seen in many years. "Jack," the collie, plays himself, and brings to the task an intelligence of no mean canine order.

How a miserly old scoundrel has sought to rob Chad Bird of his name and heritage, and how Justice triumphs in the happy ending, are revealed in due order by novelist and dramatist. The company is a big one and the players competent. Among them are Mark Price, Wallace Owen, Miss Jennie A. Eustace, George Sylvester, Miss Crosby Little, Miss Orrilla Smith, Brigham Royce and Harry Hadfield.

But the "stars" are little George Dunn and Jack, the collie, and the AMERICAN earnestly recommends "The Shepherd of Kingdom Come," at the Plymouth Theatre, to everybody in Boston who loves boys, who likes dogs and who hankers for something theatrical which is far removed from "crooks," legs and "problems."

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Brandon Tynan in "The Melody of Youth," a romantic Irish comedy of which he is the author, is drawing large audiences to the Hollis this week. Mr. Tynan's play is a story of Dublin a hundred years ago.

One immediately recalls the Irish melodramas of Boucicault which were all laid in the Green Isle at that period. But here is no tumultuous tale of red coats, peasants shooting landlords from behind hedges and persons who lead rebellions. It is a suave and quiet costume comedy, and its biggest moment is a duel in the last act when one shot is fired.

How Kathleen, played by Florence Martin whose sweetness and charm as Peg o' My Heart will be remembered by Boston theatre goers, wins the heart of her guardian, a divinity student who finally decides that he was not called for the priesthood, makes a very pretty story.

Rea Martin, a sister of Florence, and herself head of one of the "Peg o' My Heart" companies of two seasons ago, has an important role. Mary Shaw, a most accomplished actress is in the cast, and Mr. Tynan's support all along the line is excellent.

The comedy is constructed with considerable skill and does credit to Mr. Tynan's ability as a playwright.

NEW POPS—An entirely pleasing program marked the opening of the new season of Pops in Symphony Hall, and the success of the innovation is assured. Jacob Fasternach directed the orchestra in splendid manner. The selections were of a popular nature. The singers, all of whom, like the orchestra, were applauded, were Miss Lillia Snelling, an American contralto; Miss Dora Gibson and Constantin Nicolay.

Principal Points in Revenue Bill

Here are the principal provisions of the revenue tax bill which was passed by the Senate early today and which is now in conference committee on the Senate amendments:

An increase from 1 to 2 per cent. on the normal income tax, with an exemption of $4,000 for married and $2,000 for single persons, and for the following surtaxes:

One per cent. on amount by which the net income exceeds $20,000 and does not exceed $40,000; 2 per cent., $40,000 to $60,000; 3 per cent., $60,000 to $80,000; 4 per cent., $80,000 to $100,000; 5 per cent., $100,000 to $150,000; 6 per cent., $150,000 to $200,000; 7 per cent., $200,000 to $250,000; 8 per cent., $250,000 to $300,000; 9 per cent., $300,000 to $350,000; 10 per cent., $350,000 to $400,000; 11 per cent., $400,000 to $450,000; 12 per cent., $450,000 to $500,000; 13 per cent. on the amount by which the net income exceeds $2,000,000.

Special inheritance taxes are imposed as follows: A tax on the transfer of the net estate of decedents, dying after passage of the act, 1 per cent. of the amount of such net estates not in excess of $50,000; 2 per cent., $50,000 to $150,000; 3 per cent., $150,000 to $250,000; 4 per cent., $250,000 to $450,000; 5 per cent., $450,000 to $1,000,000; 6 per cent., $1,000,000 to $2,000,000; 7 per cent., $2,000,000 to $3,000,000; 8 per cent., $3,000,000 to $4,000,000; 9 per cent., $4,000,000 to $5,000,000, and 10 per cent. on the amount by which such estate exceeds $5,000,000.

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The revenue bill was passed by the Senate at 12:25 this morning. The vote was 42 to 16.

The following Republicans voted for the bill: Clapp, Cummins, Kenyon, La Follette and Norris.

Legislation of the most drastic character that will permit of retaliation and reprisals against the Allies and effectually stop the British blacklist policy was written into the general revenue bill by the Senate.

An amendment proposed by Senator Thomas of Colorado, and adopted without dissent, empowers the President to refuse clearance papers to any belligerent merchantman that refuses American goods unless and only because of lack of cargo space. An attempt to sail without clearance is made punishable by heavy fine and imprisonment of two years. The ship may be seized by the government.

The amendment, it was admitted, was prepared with the approval of the State Department. This admission is especially significant in view of the provision "that the President is hereby authorized and empowered to employ such part of the land and naval forces of the United States as shall be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act."

AIMED AT BRITISH.

The application of this power to use naval vessels in enforcing the act would mean the virtual blockading of our own coasts by our own warships to prevent the escape of allied ships that had been refused clearance papers.

The Thomas amendment is admittedly an emergency measure. Nobody attempted to conceal the fact that it was aimed at the acts of the British government. The Senate has been informed that every diplomatic effort of this government to bring about relief for American citizens subjected to the blacklist proved fruitless. The approval of the State Department is accepted as proof of a determination on the part of the Administration to begin an active policy to protect the rights of American and other neutral commerce

WITHOUT PROTEST.

Another amendment which its opponents characterized as revolutionary, offered by Senator Phelan, would prohibit the use of the mails, the cable, wireless, express and other means of communication by citizens of countries that do not accord full and free facilities to American citizens in commerce, including the unhampered traffic in the mails.

The prohibition is to be enforced when the President shall be satisfied there is reasonable ground to believe such discrimination exists and after a proclamation has been issued. This amendment also was adopted without protest.

TYPHOID CASES IN LYNN TOTAL 64

Although three new cases of typhoid, bringing the total to sixty-four, have been reported in Lynn, John W. Tapper, chairman of the Board of Health, states that he believes the epidemic is approaching its close. The new cases were traced to the same source as the others—milk supplied by an out-of-town dealer.

TAKE AMHERST SITE FOR POSTOFFICE

Washington, Sept. 6.—The Treasury Department today ordered condemnation proceedings instituted to gain possession of the Eliza T. Leland properties at Amherst, Mass., to be used as a post-office site.

LATEST STOCK MARKET NEWS

Unusual movement in prices began as a result of the railroad labor settlement continued from the opening of the New York market today, and at noon many stocks had gained over three points from yesterday's closing quotations.

Trading was feverishly active, transactions totalling well over half a million shares in the first two hours. Several new high record prices were made.

Greatest interest was in United States Steel preferred as it rapidly advanced in spite of heavy selling to 104¾, its highest price on record. It then reacted slightly.

New high records were also made by Marine common at 59⅝, Marine preferred at 124 and Kelley-Springfield Tire at 84¾. A new high for 1916 was made by United States Rubber at 59½.

There was not much activity in railroads except Reading, which at noon had advanced 2½ points to 167¼.

Among larger gains in New York at noon were Crucible Steel 3¾, Industrial Alcohol 2¾, Mexican Petroleum 3¼, Texas Company 7 and Chandler Motor 5¾. Many other stocks had gains of over a point.

Like New York, the Boston market was active today, Copper and Mexicans were features in the trading. Atlantic Gulf & West Indies, East Boston and U. S. Smelting were the most active.

Among gains in Boston at noon were East Boston 1⅛, Atlantic Gulf & West Indies 1¾, U. S. Smelting 1¾, Old Dominion 1¼, Lake 1⅝, St. Marys 2, Mohawk 1¼, Butte & Superior 1⅝ and American Zinc 1¼.

The Boston School Board Has Wisely Decided to Postpone the Opening of the Schools

The Question of Keeping the Schools Closed While There Is Danger of an Epidemic Is a Question for Parents

By a unanimous decision, the Boston School Board has decided to postpone the opening of the public schools of Boston for several weeks on account of the baby plague. This was a very wise decision.

Undoubtedly the more prudent school committees of the cities and towns throughout the State will do likewise. No substantial loss will be entailed by a postponement of the opening of the schools. Some disturbance of schedules, some little inconvenience, may be involved, but nothing like the loss of a single child.

The only three things that are known about this epidemic disease are: First, that it is contagious; second, that absolute separation of those who are free from disease from those who are afflicted with it or who have been in its presence, is an absolute preventative of its spread; and third, that the danger of spreading is in proportion to the congregating of people whose conditions of living and whose recent associations are not known. It, therefore, manifestly reduces the danger to reduce the number of children who will play together and sit together, as in a public school.

This is a question for parents and not for doctors. Every doctor knows that it is more prudent to keep the schools closed until the crisis of the epidemic is passed. His opinion whether the danger of opening the schools is balanced by the inconvenience of postponing the opening, is unimportant.

Your opinion as a father or mother having a child in a public school is much more important and you should decide as a father or mother and as a citizen of your city or town whether your schools should open or whether the example of Boston should be followed.

Your local school committee probably agrees with the school committee of Boston, and would be glad to close the schools if public sentiment in your city or town approves it.

How Do You Run YOUR Telephone?

Do You Always Have to "Wait Just a Minute" While the Important Person at the Other End Is Sent For?

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

We have been young, and now we are old, yet never have we been called to the telephone except to sit and wait for some gentleman or lady to come and notice us.

When we use the telephone we call a number, and sit like gray-haired Saturn, silent as a stone, waiting for the individual to come to the wire.

But when we are called, it does not work in that way. The individual who calls us is always in the next room, or on the next block—apparently.

This is how it works with us:

The telephone bell rings, and, like a startled fawn, we dash to it and hear this:

"Is this Mr. So and So? Well, hold the 'phone."

We hold the 'phone, sometimes only two or three minutes, sometimes longer. Then the voice says again: "Is this Mr. So and So? Well, hold the 'phone, Mr. —— will be here right away."

Gradually Mr. —— comes, and says what he has to say. Never has he explained why, in the name of common sense and impertinence, he makes US wait while his bulky form moves through space.

Sometimes there is an improvement on the above program.

We hear one voice, rather feeble, perhaps that of a female stenographer, saying: "Is this Mr. So and So?" We say, "Yes," and lean on our elbow.

Then she says: "I will call the private secretary."

The private secretary is called, and after a reasonable time he asks if we are Mr. So and So. We say, "Yes," lean on our other elbow, and he says: "Hold the 'phone."

Then he calls the real effulgent being that has deigned to call us up.

This is our humble suggestion, and perhaps we are going to try it. When anybody calls you on the telephone and begins by saying: "Is this Mr. So and So, hold the 'phone," JUST HANG UP YOUR TELEPHONE. When you are called again and the same voice says, "Is this Mr. So and So?" say "Yes," and hang up your telephone.

Little by little it might be possible to teach THE OTHER MAN to use his telephone the way you use YOURS, and avoid the modern, up-to-date impertinence which takes it for granted that your time is worth nothing, that all you have to do is wait while his office boy, his secretary and assistants move him gradually to the telephone.

We shall be glad to hear complaints and suggestions from the "slaves of the 'phone." For we believe that the telephone has come to stay, and it needs a code.

For instance, when you call on a man, he lets you sit while he answers fully every donkey that "calls him up." Why is that?

ANY EXCUSE WILL DO!

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Mosquito

He pipes no lay; he sings no song; on silent wings he speeds along,
No fears of harm your dreams alarm.
No blustering threat affrights you.
Until, with soft and velvet tread, he crawls across your neck and head,
And, with a smile of brutal guile,
He bares his fangs and bites you.

And yet, since bite he must and does, I'd rather that he wouldn't buzz
About my bed to voice his dread
And scoundrelly intentions
While I, predestined for his prey, must listen to his shrilling lay
And lie awake and quake and shake
With awful apprehensions.

Fate may intend for all I know to get me in a day or so,
Hard luck may stand, with sword in hand,
Along the road I'm going,
What missiles may be aimed at me before another day I see,
What cuffs and kicks, what stones and bricks—
There isn't any knowing.

But if these things are bound to come, I'm glad they do not sing and hum
A warning song the whole night long
To drive me half demented.
I'd rather have it over quick than lie and worry till I'm sick
To contemplate a future fate
That cannot be prevented.

Hardhead and Softheart

By C. F. Thwing

President Western Reserve University

Hardheadedness is cold reasoning. It is incarnate logic. It is solid common sense. It is sound judgment. It is mathematics. It stands for intellectual addition, subtraction, multiplication and division, even for the greatest common divisor and least common multiple. Its laws—and it has laws—are like the laws of physics, exact.

Its processes are lengthy and inevitable. Its judgments are, or seem to be, the interpretations and applications of supreme justice. Its theories are the inductions and condensations of unnumbered experiences, absolute and inevitable. Its conclusions are, and must be, right; and the application of its theories are as unerring and unescapable as the laws of gravitation.

Softheartedness is character saturated with tender emotion. It presupposes the abdication of the intellect from its throne. It also presupposes the overthrow of the sovereignty of the will. It intimates the expulsion of the conscience from the individual's bosom. It intimates the duty of the immediate relief of the immediate case of agony and disaster. It lives in today, having forgotten yesterday; yesterday is prehistoric, being unmindful of tomorrow, tomorrow belongs to an endless future. Softheartedness is Good Samaritanism minus its head and its purse.

Hardheadedness merits a certain commendation. It really is intellectual. It has judgment, good sense, logic, reasoning. Judgment, good sense, logic, reasoning are primary human facts, and represent fundamental human methods.

Softheartedness also deserves commendation. It has no kindness, generosity, graciousness, warm impulses, helpful instincts. These, too, are fundamental and primary human facts and methods.

Napoleon Would Be Power in War Today

Gigantic Augmentations of Capital and Wonderful Inventions in Artillery Made Since His Time Would Only Increase Ability of Great French Genius, Garrett P. Serviss Says

By Garrett P. Serviss

One of the most singular popular illusions that the great war has produced is the widespread idea that modern warfare is essentially a new game, and that the old masters like Napoleon would find their genius tied hand and foot by the new methods, conditions and machinery.

Over and over you hear the opinion expressed that Napoleon would be as completely baffled by the present deadlock of armies as are the men actually in command. Millions of men were not in the field in his time, we are told; battles were not fought along lines hundreds of miles in length, armies did not dig themselves in and fight invisibly, aeroplanes had not been invented to survey the enemy's dispositions and reveal his plans from moving watch towers in the sky.

There were no co-ordinated lines of railroad and swift automotors to facilitate the movement and concentration of troops, there were no machine guns to mow down charging columns, there was no gigantic artillery seconded by explosives of tremendous power to reduce the strongest fortifications to dust and blow whole companies or regiments to pieces by a single shot.

Fundamental Principles of War and Power of Genius Unchanged

All this is perfectly true, but it does not in the slightest degree alter the fundamental principles of the art of war or eliminate the part that genius of the Napoleonic kind can play in it.

Modern inventions have produced the same evolution in warfare that they have in trade and industry, and no more. They have uplifted the whole level of human endeavor, but they have not eliminated the natural inequalities. The continent has risen, but the mountains have gone up with it. The entire civilized world shares the advance, and the mind surveys its eternal problems from the same relative elevation that it had before.

Have the gigantic augmentations of capital and the illimitable extensions of trade, commerce, industry and intercommunication paralyzed the powers of superior men, or reduced them to a lower relative place? Everybody knows that such has not been the effect.

The "captains of industry" have kept their place at the head, and have grown greater with the increasing greatness of the means at their command. There is not the least indication that genius is being overtopped. It still rides triumphant on the summit of the wave. It cannot be submerged by the product of its own creation.

If Napoleon were in Europe today his glance would comprehend the military situation and penetrate the heart of its problems just as masterfully as it did more than a hundred years ago. He would be Napoleon still. His relative value would remain unchanged.

Just as he saw what to do, and did it quicker and better than the other generals of his own time, so he would show his superiority now. There cannot be any doubt about this, for it is of the very nature of genius to soar above the level of its time. That is what genius is for; that is what constitutes genius.

Newton today would be at the head of all the astronomers. Archimedes today would lead all the physicists. I mean Newton and Archimedes with the same minds that they had when they were on the earth before.

The quality of mind does not alter; only its acquirements advance. Reappearing today, such men would stand as we all do, on the accumulation of the human achievement of the past. I find my little girl in school dealing merrily and familiarly with algebraic problems that would have baffled many college graduates a generation ago, and using methods that Newton himself had not learned.

It is not because she has a great liking for mathematics—she thinks that subject is "horrid"—but she can handle it because she is riding on the crest of the world's advance.

No Supreme Military Genius Since Napoleon's Day Despite Many Wars

Great geniuses appear sporadically, both in time and in place. There has not been a supreme military genius since Napoleon, although there have been many wars. There was none of his calibre between his day and Caesar's, a gap of 1,869 years between their births. We are in the habit of saying that it would be well for the world if no new Napoleon should ever be born, but perhaps we are wrong about that.

Caesar gave the world a great push in advance, though at a terrible price in blood and suffering; Napoleon shook the grasp of absolutism from the throat of Europe, and it has never been thoroughly re-established, although, in the pure enjoyment of his power, he set up a temporary tyranny of his own.

This peculiarity of Napoleon throws light on the nature of genius. It is an irresponsible and irresistible force. The physical basis of genius seems to be a brain with windows, through which the mind sees things face to face, and not as through "a glass darkly," the way most of us take our intellectual views. Genius works without effort and disdains control. A Napoleon appearing on either side now would put an end to the war. Would that be the best way to end it?

July cooking has spoiled the disposition of many a sweet June bride.

If one cannot be conservative without becoming a mossback he might as well plunge.

When the buyer understands his business the salesman has an easy time.

A man can write a beautiful love letter and yet in time be arrested for non-support.

There are a lot of skulls about us that might be improved by the vacuum cleaner.

Place not too much confidence in the "silver threads." A gray fox is a fox just the same.

The "Throw Back" of Men in Battle

How primitive emotions and impulses are aroused by the blare of cannon and the crash of shell, explained by distinguished scientists and psychologists in next
